Return From Long Journey

On Saturday evening, April 8, Danny Childress (2nd from left) and Harold Howard (2nd from right) completed a walk from Petersburg to Appomattox, re-enacting General Lee's retreat from Petersburg 107 years ago as he and his weary army trudged westward, a journey that ended in Appomattox on April 9, 1865 with Lee's surrender to General U. S. Grant in the McLean House. A hot meal was waiting at the home of Joe Megginons, Vera, and later, the family gathered in the living room (above) with Virginia Gordon (far left) and Josie Megginson (far right) dressed in authentic costume, Josie's pink cotton dress, now more than 100 years old, belonged to a sister of Miss Eddie Hardy, a teacher in Appomattox. Both girls are seniors at ACHS and both are a part of the VIP program (Volunteers in Park) at Appomattox Court House National Historical Park. Other re-enactment soldiers who made the walk from Petersburg include Bob Stevens, Michael Waskul, Chris Calkins and Steve Mrozek, all of Detroit, Mich. Harold Howard and Chris Calkins are employed by the National Park as part of their "living history" presentation.
